“With the possibility of new variants looming, COVID-19 is still a threat to our community,” said Patricia White, director of patient care services at Corry Memorial Hospital. “The best defense we have against the virus is to get vaccinated. Many people are still reluctant to get the vaccine, so we’re adding a small incentive to encourage them. This is another way to give back to our community.”

Residents should call 814-664-4641, ext. 1234, to register.
